BRATS AND BAGS LUNCH TICKET SELLING DIRECTIONS

The bottom line is: think like us (the committee). What information would *you* want/need, or how would *you* want things handled if you were asking 100 people to sell tickets for an event? Chances are that's what we want, too. Reduce ambiguity at all times. If you don't know, ask. Make things as crystal clear as possible for us, okay?

Bloomington Normal Sunrise Rotary News

Continued-

1. The smaller square part of the ticket is their lunch ticket – the larger part with the address information is for our recordkeeping: PLEASE KEEP THIS BIGGER PART and TURN IT BACK IN! J We only need name information for delivery – otherwise, honestly, we just don't care for right now unless you want us to care who you're selling tickets to (?).

2. WE ONLY DELIVER 10+ LUNCHES. No exceptions. We will need their name & phone information if they're requiring delivery of 10 lunches or more. BUT: we don't need each individual person's information of that 10+.

For example, if John Doe and 9 of his colleagues at Widgets Incorporated want lunch, fill out John Doe's information but not his 9 colleagues' information – it's John Doe's problem to hand out food once it's delivered, and he'll happily do that for us. Then kindly paperclip or staple John Doe's ticket stub (our portion) to the other 9 (or more) that goes with it and have them all come in to us together. This is important. (If you put John's name, and each of his colleagues' names, it leaves a window of ambiguity for us regarding the order. We only want the contact person's information, but we need the whole batch of tickets with it. And if for some reason every single person on that order demands Diet Coke, mark that down somehow, but please make no guarantees. We'll do the best we can to honor requests, but not everyone is going to get exactly what they want (Hint: the trick is to just not offer, right?))

3. NO DELIVERY SALES within 48 hours of the event. No exceptions. Delivery orders that came in the night before the event last time never made it out – because we were so in-the-weeds at that point. We want to give good service, so we need to cut off delivery sales on 9/30

4. Turn in your ticket stubs (the informational part) to Rhonda. She likes stubs. She's also impeccably organized. Rhonda's your gal, OK?

5. Money was a bit of a logistical nightmare for us last year – please help us this year: MONEY ONLY COMES INTO US IN AN ENVELOPE WITH YOUR NAME ON IT AND A DESCRIPTION OF WHAT IT IS FOR AND HOW MUCH YOU'RE TURNING IN. We won't accept a wad of cash. We won't take a check where you simply tell us "this is for brats." Please don't do that to us. Please?? We gave you a nice envelope with your name on it already – consider using it when you turn your stuff back in – just write on the back what it is for. MONEY ONLY GOES TO RHONDA. If you try to pass it off to someone other than Rhonda, you'll get a stink-eye. J Again, Rhonda's the gal.

Simple recap:

- Delivery only to 10 or more. Be sure to get their phone number.
- Sell tickets through the day of the event, but sell deliveries only until the 30th of Sept.
- Return stubs and money in an envelope w/your name and what the money is for to Rhonda. Sooner is better than later, ok?

We greatly appreciate all that you do. Thanks!
